OVER THIS IS HERE RAINBOW

& so it was
they

threw the ball
just a tad

too far & killed
the father

on the seventh
day it came

(verb past
tense) to pass

that a preacher
came to town

for which you
need a rope

some kind of
trick & an

audience of
at least one

some old
country crooner

howling at the
full moon

a few days
too soon

buddha (alive, what's he doing still alive?)

trudging up a slope to wards the tree

tops only to find a
lotus flowering there too

it is commendable
using less water

but you really
need to be able

to flush down
a proper crap

lost his hand
can't re

member which
one, to a blender out

of curiosity now some
how satisfied

the moon is in the

water & have
we learned no

thing from li
po?

a new sentence. &
another 350 years

with possible half
time parole. as

for chairs, what
news is there?

are you
serious? are

you really
serious? can you

seriously say
you're

simple statements of fact: people have basic needs. the current world order is contrary to their

fulfillment. simple question: what to do?

what happens when the dust blows sideways?
what happens when someone finally notices?

what happens when the driver loses his head?
what happens if he doesn't happen to notice?

what happens between the fact?
what happens when you get two minutes notice?

old lady
judges

bums
stars

share the side
walk

a poetics?

) will
this do?

a few drops
of rain &

the umbrella
vendors grow

out of the
pavements

that mountain simply exploded giving

the cow flight for the first time in her

life. or so she
said later

on the day
after the

preacher was
run out

by angered
citizens

it was good
being an hour

behind this morning
the next step is

not knowing what
faces are in power
